DR. M'INTYRE A WITNESS.

HIS TREATMENT OF MRS. BUCHANAN ON HER DEATRED.

ted Narcotlam, but was Led by Mer Husband to Believe that Her Aliment was Corobral Apoplexy, and He Gave a Death Cortificate Under That Belief, Recorder Smyth came into court fifteen minutes late yesterday morning to resume the trial of Dr. Robert W. Buchanan, charged with wife murder. The Recorder's face was a trifle more "implacable and terrible" than usual, and before he had been half an hour on the bench he had rapped everyone of the seven counsel severely over the knuckles, had frightened several witnesses into a dumb ague, and had subdued the crowd of spectators into absolute ellence. When Mr. Smyth is in a cartain frame of mind he speaks in a very low tone. He made some reply yesterday morning to an objection by Mr. Brooke which the latter did not understand. Mr. Brooke

'It is very unfortunate that I lack the ability to make myself understood by counsel," said

"It is no lack of ability on the part of your Honor," said Mr. Brooks, deprecatingly. The heavy hangings back of where your Honor sits destroy every particle of acoustic properties the room ever possessed, and make communication between the bench and bar al-

You should address your criticisms to the Department of Public Works," responded the Recorder. "Proceed."

There was one witness who never looked toward the Recorder, and who, feeling confident because of his soft voice, was unaware of her danger when she prattled on after she had been told to stop.

This was Mrs. Eliza Ruddy, a large and wellcontent lodging-house keeper. One little question by Mr. Osborne would be responded to by her with a long answer. I can't stop her." said the Recorder, in a boneless wonder. I'll help your Honor." said Mr. Brooke.

"If you please," the Recorder responded. The first half of the day's session was relatively unimportant in results, but in the af-ternoon the testimony of Dr. Bennett C. Me-Intyre, who was one of the physicians in attendance on Mrs. Buchanan, opened a new and important line of evidence.

Nathan Klein, Commissioner of Deeds, the first witness called, identified a surety bond dened by the defendant and sworn to before the witness on Sept. 12, 1891, in which Dr. Buchanan swore to the ownership of the house 267 West Eleventh street. This evidence was duced to contradict the statement made r. Buchanan to two other witnesses that he did not own the house.

Mrs. Eliza Ruddy, who lets furnished rooms at 161 Boulevard, testined that Dr. Buchanan's at 181 Boulevard, testified that Dr. Buchanan's wife had rented a room from her in May, 1892. Witness said that they gave the name of Reed, She knew them by no other name. They were there about ten days, and left the 8th or 10th she knew them by no other name. They were there about ten days, and left the 5th or 10th of June.

Augustus Ray, colored, testified that he worked until last fall for a saloon keeper at first-seventh street and the Boulevard. In May, 1892," said the witness, "I went for the defendant to Harry Warren's, in Nineteenth street, for a valies. I took the valies to Mrs. Ruddy's, 1til Boulevard. I gave it there to a lady, a lady with a very pale face and red hair. She sent me to Eighth avenue, near Fourteenth street, over a milkman's linacomber's, to get a child's trunk and wagon. I took them to Mrs. Ruddy." Hay also said that he had taken notes for Buchanan to Lawyer Pavison.

"What is the object of this testimony?" asked Recorder Smyth.

Mr. Wellman reniled that he was proving that the defendant, just prior to his arrest, was living under a faise name, was summunicating with his lawyer, and evidently was preparing for flight.

The next witness was Mrs. Harry Warren, wite of the witness who testified last week that he had taken Buchanan's valiae from the West Elevanth street house. She said:

"After Dr. Buchanan returned from Nova Scotia, and while his valies was in our house. Scotia, and while his valies was in our house. Scotia and while his valies was in our house. He did so, and then said that he might as well shoot himself. The world, he said, was hounding him, and he might as well be dead. He said that if he had cremated the woman they could find nothing, and then he could sue for damages when he was out of his truble."

The people then put in evidence the deed made by Annie B. Buchanan of the Halasy street, Newark, house and lot to Robert W. Buchanan, which bore date of Dec. 13, 1890, and adeed dated Sept. 19, 1892, by Robert W. Buchanan and wife. Annie B. both of Buchanan's wives were named Annie B., of the same property to Herbert W. Knight. The marriage contract was read, to show that the contracting parties were described as "apinster" and "bachelor."

Henry G. Dorsch. keeper of a "café and filliard room" at 150 Boulevard, said: "Mr. Bavisse introduces me to the defendant in May, 1892. I do not remember by what name, but it was neither Buchanan nor Reed. Bay, 1932 I was neither Buchanan nor Reed.

"Mr. Davison said that he had a client whom he wanted to keep quiet for a time. He did not want his client to see any newspaper men. Mr. Davison asked me if I could not find a light want his client was my place. I took him rom for his client near my place. I took him to Mrs. Ruddy's. He was in my place playing eards and talking with me a great deal. When I asked him why he had remarried his first wife he said he was very fond of hex."

the morning and watched everybody that came in the

Q-Did you visit the defendant in the Tombe? A.—
Yes, at his request. I said to him that if they had arrested him a couple of days sooner he would have been taken in my place. He answered if they had waited a couple of days they would not have caught him. I don't know whether he meant he would not have been aught at my place or not at all.

Bave been aught at my place or not at all.

To Mr. Brooke the witness said that in the Tombs Dr. Buchanan had told him that he had been in Lawyer Davison's office waiting to bearrested if he was wanted, and also that his counsel, Mr. Brooke, had gone to the District Attorney's office and asked if any indictment had been found against him.

"Is there a contention here that any offer was made to surrender the defendant?" asked Mr. Nicoll.

"There's "Any was and Mr. Brooke."

"There is," answered Mr. Brooke.

"Lawyer Davison said this was damn hard uck: I went up. he said, to the District Attorney's office, and they promised to let me know when they wanted Buchanan."

Dr. McIntyre, one of the physicians attendant upon Mrs. Buchanan in her last sickness, was called next. He said that he lived at 221 West Fourth street, about four blocks from where Dr. Buchanan lived last April with his wife when she died. He had known Buchanan four or five years. He had been introduced by a man whom he esteemed, and he had assisted the young doctor by throwing what practice he could in his way.

"On the morning of Friday, April 22," he said. I was called by Dr. Buchanan about 8 o'clock to see his wife. I found his wife in bed with her clothes on. Dr. Buchanan told me that while in the kitchen or dining room Mrs. Buchanan had been taken with severe pain in the head and had fallen or was about to fall. I found the woman suffering from exeruciating pains in her head and extreme nervousness. She did not think she was going to live, and asked to see a lawyer. Her temperature was normal and her pulse a little accelerated. After a superficial examination for kidney troubs, I diagnosed her case as hysteria and prescribed a teaspoonfulof bromide of sodium, taken every two hours. I did not regard the condition as serious, and left after ten or fif-teen minutes."

I was now satisfied that she had cerebral apoplexy, and when she died I issued the death certificate under this belief."

PROMINENT IN CHURCH WORK.

She Now Confesses that She is a Blackmaller and an Incendiary. Stoux Farts, S. D., April 4 .- In the United States Court Mrs. D. Thompson was arraigned this morning. She had been for two years one of the most prominent people socially in Highmore. She has much beauty, and had a very wide circle of friends, particularly in the Church and benevolent work, in which she was conspicuous. She has now confessed, however, that she is an incendiary, black-mailer, and sender of obscene literature. Over a year ago very serious fires occurred.

Barns, houses, and business blocks went one after the other until nearly the entire business portion of the city had been scorched. Finally the Court House, containing valuable papers, was consumed, though the records were saved and soon alterward the building in which these records were being kept was discovered to be on fire.

these records were being kept was discovered to be on fire.

About this time various prominent men began to receive letters of the vitest description, apparently intended to extort money. These letters were all in the same hand, and all admitted that the writer had caused the burning and was intending to continue it. One prominent lumber dealer was approached to assist in burning the sale of the lumber required to rebuild it, Similar suggestions were offered to others. Both the State and United States authorities did everything possible to find the criminal.

authorities did everything possible to ind the criminal.

Finally the Postmaster was set to watch. After months of dreary vigils, one dark and stormy night he sawa letter in the well-known hand put into the box. He rushed out and selzed the culprit, who proved to be Mrs. Thompson. She confessed to the writing and the burning, saying that she burned the Court House to destroy the swidences of some debta, and that the other crimes were instigated by House to destroy the evidences of some debts, and that the other crimes were instigated by certain men of high standing. Her action has produced a profound sensation through the entire State.

BROKER SUTTON'S FORGERIES.

Indications that His Operations will Reach LOUISVILLE, April 4.-It is believed that the whole amount of Broker Sutton's whiskey victims are smarting so much under their osses that they will not talk, and the facts are slowly coming out. It was learned to-day that Sutton has certainly forged a large number of acceptances on drafts. Most of these were drawn on men who are under obligations of one sort or another to him. To one at least he wrote an appeal not to be exposed, but did not sign his name to the letter. It is now in the hands of the prosecution. One of these drafts was on R. J. Simms & Co., whiskey dealers, of Memphis, for $1.700. This indicates that his operations have reached much further than was at first thought. Sutton owes, on certificates, the Louisville Public Warshouse, $70,000. secured by about 2,000 harrals of whiskey out of bond. To the Louiswere drawn on men who are under obligations further than was at first thought. Sutton owes, on certificates, the Louisville Public Warehouse, $70,000, secured by about 2,000 barrels of whiskey out of bond. To the Leuisville banks he owes, in addition, $160,000; to the Cincinnati bankers and dealers, $120,000; to the Lawrenceburg Bank and others in Lawrenceburg, $30,000. He also owes a Baltimore warehouse company a large amount for Maryland whiskey, in which he dealt largely.

Sutton still maintains his composure, and he and his attorneys declare that he is innocent and can pay every dollar he owes. No faith is put in these assertions by most of the bankers. In his deed of assignment he claimed he owned 14,000 barrels of whiskey. His books have just been turned over to the assignee. They give some idea of his operations. For instance, he has pledged receipts for 8,000 barrels of whiskey from a distillery which has only produced 3,000 barrels. There is a suspicion that he has confederates. The mystery as to his motives in this wholesale plunge in crime is as far from being solved as ever. Nor does any one know what he has done with the loss any one know what he has done with the

SUICIDE OF A SUICIDE'S DAUGHTER.

Unrequited Love Puts a Climax to the In-herited Melancholla of a Polish Girl, Sarah Muller, the 20-year-old daughter of a Polish army contractor who made a fortune by furnishing meat to the Russian army, committed suicide early yesterday in her lodgings at 330 Cherry street with poison of some sort. She inherited melancholia from her mother, who drowned herself in a well the year Sarah was born. She came to this country last summer on her father's marrying again, and was quarantined for weeks on Hoffman Island. While residing with a sister of her stepmother in East Sixty-second street she met a young countryman who, under the Anglieized name of Reuben Stone, was preparing to enter the engineering department of Columbia College. She fell in love with him, but he was too ambitious to marry, and she wrote to her father for money to go hack to Poland. When the money, $50, came, she changed her mind and went to live in Cherry street. When the money was gone she secured employment in a button factory. The work apparently did not prove congenial. She left a note to the man she loved saying she could live no longer, and wishing him happiness. She also asked that her suicide be kept from her father. An autopsy will be made to determine the nature of the poison she took. She inherited melancholla from her mother,

Insurance Companies Bring a $200,000 Suit Against the Villaols Central.

NEW ORLEANS, April 4.- The Ætna. Oregos. Springfield. Royal George, Home, Home Insurance Company of New York, American Fire Insurance Company of New York, Scottish, Union, and Hartford fire insurance compa-Union, and Hartford fire insurance companies have filed suit against the Illinois Central Railroad Company for an aggregate of $200,-000, the amount of insurance the companies had to pay for losses sustained in the big cotton fire at the Fire Proof. Independent, and Orieans cotton presses one year ago. It is alleged that the configgration was caused by a spark from one of the passing locomotives of the defendant company, and that the company was guilty of gross negligence in not giving the engine modern appliances for avoiding such accidents. The suit is of the same nature as that of S. Gumble & Co., brought against the Illinois Central several days ago, and brings the total amount already claimed from the railroad because of & spark close to one half of a million dollars.

By Means of Bogus Checks He Swindled a Restaurant Out of $75 a Week.

Patrick O'Neil, a waiter in Burns's restau rant in Sixth avenue, near Forty-fourth street got a number of checks printed like those in use in the place, and gave them to likely customers in place of those furnished by the eashler. He was thus enabled to keep the money the customers paid instead of banding it to the cashler. He did this several times a night for two months, when the cashler discovered that the restaurant was losing about $75 a week. He employed a detective who, when pretending to be a customer, impressed O'Neil as being the right kind of a person to try his private checks on, so he made out an account for $4 on one. The detective paid in marked money, and then arrested the waiter. He was held in $1,500 in the Yorkville Police Court on Monday. use in the place, and gave them to likely cus-

He had not recovered consciousness. Dr. Weston of the Coroners' office, made an autopsy yesterday afternoon. "I met him last summer at Long Branch." she said. "He had just got back from South America. He was one of my best friends from the very first time I met him. He would come here whenever he felt like it and stay just as long as he pleased. It was a sort of home to him, I suppose. I always had a room ready for him. to see me. He was not at all well. I am afraid he had been drinking. He complained on Thursday night that he could not alsep. He felt so bad on Friday that he did not go out of the house. His head hurt him, he said. He did not drink very much, but seemed to be sobering up rapidly. On baturday night he souffered great pain, and took some antipyrine and aulphonal as a sedative. He took too much, however, for it only made him restless. On Sunday he took some morphine.

Any stories that any one gave him morphine are false. Mr. Childs always carried the drug with him in a small silver case, which he had when I first met him. He seemed as much better yesterday that I went out about 1 o'clock, leaving him in the house. I got back about half past b. He was lying on the bed. I asked him how he felt, and he said he was worse. He might have been drinking. I went out to the dining room to supper, expecting he would follow. He did not come and I called him. In answer I heard a noise like a loud anore. I thought he was asleen, and I finished my supper. Then I went into his bedroom as the noise continued and increased. Mr. Childs was lying on the bed gasping and choking with the sallva streaming from his mouth. He had rolled the bedclothes in a tangled heap. I tried to rouse him, and when I found I could not. I sent my maid at once for Dr. Alexander Dallas of 45 West Thirty-sixth street. I told Dr. Dallas when he came that Mr. Childs was in the habit of taking morphine.

Mr. Childs was in the habit of taking morphine.

"My maid told us that Mr. Childs had gone out soon after I did and went down town. She said he came back about 5 o'clock with Jack McDonald, a friend of his, who leit him at the door. He must have taken the morphine, though, after I came in. Dr. Dallas cailed in Dr. Chamberlain. Mr. Childs was unconscious then. The two doctors worked with him fully two hours before they sent for an ambulance. He was taken to the hospital, where I followed as soon as possible. It is an awful loss."

Agent Cowan of the apartment house says that Mrs. Jardine has lived in the house about a year. Dr. Childs was one of her most constant visitors.

Dr. Childs has been known to a number of New Yorkers for the past three years. He lived oatensibly at the Hotel Motropole, where he occupied one of the finest suites of rooms in the house. He was not at the hotel much. His lills averaged $60 and $70 a week for perhaps two nights of a week. He left the hotel on Feb. 24 last and has seldom been seen there since.

It was said in the hotel yesterday that he appeared to be a very busy man. He occasionally let drop some intimations of being largely interested in mines and mining schemes. It was one of these schemes that took him to South America last year, and it was in South America that he allowed the morphine habit to get such a hold on him. He got back from South America, it is said, in June, and two months later went to Europe. He returned to New York last October and went to the Metropole. He spent his money freely at all times, was very fond of a sporting life, and was a hard drinker. His death caused a sensation in the Tenderloin district, where his friends think that he was under the influence of liquor on Monday evening and took the overdose of morphine by mistake.

Col. Lyman Kaine, a friend of his, tried last Thursday to induce him to go to the keeley Institute at White Plains. Childs agreed to go this week. When Ericsson, the first mate of the schooner, went on deck just after she anchored off Red Hock, at the foot of East Thirty-second street, he found the foresail furled and a rest six feet long cut in her luff. The main halyard was cut and the mainsail rent for several feet. Capt. Ross accused the prisoners of doing the samage from spite. They said the Captain had treated them with great cruelty and not given them sufficient food on the schooner's voyage from Earbadoes, from which she had brought a cargo of cedar and managany. They were held in $500 bail for examination to-day.

SEVENTEEN LIONS ABOARD.

The Bovic Brings Herr Hagenbeck's Menagerie to the World's Fair. The White Star steamship Bovic arrived from Liverpool yesterday bearing the largest collection of wild animals that ever reached this port. The Bovic did not go to her pier. but cast anchor off Bedlow's Island. The animals belong to Carl Hagenbeck's famous menagerie, and most of them are trained to perform tricks. Herr Hagenbeck and a troupe of forty-seven performers ac-trained to perform tricks. Herr Hagenbeck and a troupe of forty-seven performers accompany the menageria. The entire outfit will leave for Chicago to take part in the World's Fair.

The menagerie consists of 2 elephants, 17 llons, 5 tigers, 5 leopards, 12 bears, 3 dogs, 4 pigs, 3 goats, 4 sheep, 1 hyens, 3 horses, 4 ponles, 2 zebras, 16 cases of monkeys, 20 cases of parrots, and 5 cases of storks. There are also on board the Bovic several thousand ethnographical specimens from Africa, China, India, and Australia.

The customs officer who boarded the Bovic was deeply impressed by two women of the troupe whose specialty is to cow the tigers and llons of the menagerie by the power of their eyes.

"They're Big. strong women," this officer said, "Good-lookers, too."

The Bovic will reach her pier, next the Christopher street ferry, between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning.

The steamship Guildhall, from Alexandria, Egypt, anchored off Liberty Island yesterday with 160 passengers, mostly Arabs and Turks, who are going to the World's Fair. Fourteen of the voyagers are young Egyptian women and girls, who will entertain the Chicago visitors with the danse du resure. The party will occupy a village representing a part of the construction of twenty houses aboard the Guidhall. There are some enake charmers among the Orientals, and they will have forty-seven snakes to practise om. Among the animals are twenty camels, twenty donkeys, and five monkeys. The party will be examined by the Immigration Inspectors aboard ship and permitted to go to Chicago.

A FIRE CHIEF FRELS HURT.

Foreman Octting of Protection No. 1 Mustn't Fill His Reports with Funny Business. At the March meeting of the Hackensack trolling body in town affairs in Hackensack Chief Engineer Waltermire reported that Foreman William Octting of Protection Engine Company. No. 1, refused to recognize the Chief of the Fire Department by monthly report of the condition of his com-monthly report of the condition of his company. The Chief said he had received a paper from Mr. Oetting, but the contents were not made public.

At the meeting of the Improvement Commission on Monday evening Chief Waltermire again reported Foreman Oetting as delinquent, and the Commissioners considered the case at length. It was deciared that the paper formerly sent to Chief Waltermire by Foreman Oetting was full of "funny business," and was of a nature to belittle the Chief Engineer as well as to ignore his authority as head of the Hackonsack Fire Department. Chief Waltermire's feelings had been hurt.

It was the unnanimous opinion of the Fire Commissioners that this shouldn't be, and the Secretary was instructed to notify Foreman Oetting and the other officers of Protection Engine Company that unless they made a proper report before the next meeting of the Commission steps would be taken to disband the company.

BURGLARS VISIT JOHN B. HASKIN. He Awakes While They Are Riding His

Clothing, but They Escape, Detective Donohue of the Tremont station is looking for a couple of burglars who entered the residences of ex-Congressman John last Friday night. They stole a diamond stud and silverware, in all valued at $300, from the first house, and $200 worth of silverware and other articles from the second. They got into Mr. Haskin's billiard room through a rear Mr. Haskin's billiard room through a rear window, and from there they want through the dining room and gathered up the silver. Then they ascended to Mr. Haskin's sleeping room. He is an invalid and does not sleep soundly, so when they had taken the diamond stud out of his shirt and were examining his pockets he awoke and cried for heln.

The burglars hurried down stairs and escaped through the window by which they had entered. They had broken into Mr. Bridge's house, which is two doors away, before. Detective Donohue found an old coat yesterday in the woods near Mr. Haskin's reaidence, which he says belonged to one of the burglars and contained papers which he hopes will lead to their arrest.

ON RACE TRACK GAMBLING. JUSTICE LIPPINCOTT'S CHARGE TO THE APRIL GRAND JURY.

Me Says that the Laws Recently Passed in Treaton for the Licensing of Tracks and the Permission of Betting are Void. The April term of the Hudson county courts opened yesterday in Jersey City. Justice Lippincott took his seat on the Supreme Court bench about the middle of the last term. Those who expected an interesting charge to the Grand Jury were not disappointed. After calling attention to the jall cases, Justice Lippincott made a strong charge against the sale of liquor on Sunday and another against pol-ier playing. Regarding the latter he said:

"This is one of the unlawful practices of a homes with young gamblers, prostituting boys and young men to a dishonest life and rendering them unfit for any honest occupation of life. No one will employ them with knowladge of their indulgences." On race track matters he said:

"In one or more places in this county, pool selling or bookmaking, or both, on horse races is habitually permitted and tolerated, if not encouraged and sanctioned. This is contrary to law. It is a misdemeanor, a crime, and the house, shop, saloon, building, or other and the house, shop, saloon, building, or other place where such pool selling or book making is so carried on is a disorderly house. I will only point to one locality as an illustration. This is the town of Harrison, in this county. There this offence openly and notorlously flourishes, much to the demoralization of that locality. Of the city of Newark, and the county of Essex. The offenders are well known to the officers of the law, Arrests have often been heretofore made, and the evidence, it is said, has been laid before former Grand Juries, but no indictments have resulted, and this illegal business has continued in that locality. Arrests have again recently taken place, and if the officers of the law perform their duty the evidence will be produced before you; and even if such evidence be not produced before you; and even if such evidence be not produced before you; and make it necessary for you, to present indictments against the offenders. You cannot perform your duty until you present such indictments as will permit the Court and traverse jury to vindicate the law and punish its violators.

"This is a matter which the Court feels very place where such pool selling or book making is lators.

This is a matter which the Court feels very earnestly about, and if the people of this county be not speedily relieved of this incubus of crime in this locality, the Court, however disagreeable it may be to do it, will be compelled to recall your attention to the mat-county be not apeedily relieved of this incubus of crime in this locality, the Court, however disagreeable it may be to do it, will be compelled to recall your attention to the matter.

"There is another matter upon which it is desirable that the Court should say something to the Grand Jury, and that is the subject of pool selling, book making, or other forms of gambling upon race tracks in this state, upon the results of races occurring there or elsewhere. The law, as it has been in some instances enforced, is that all places, whether in a building or upon or in an enclosed field, either upon or in a race course or track, or elsewhere, wherein and whereat pool selling or bookmaking upon horse racing or upon any other event is habitually carried on, are common nuisances or disorderly houses, and the persons who keep or maintain such places, or who aid, abet, or participate in their maintenance, whether as owners, lesses, or members of a copartnership, association, or corporation, are indicable as keepers of a disorderly house. If the place be maintained by an incorporated body, it may be indicted by its corporate name, or individually by individual names. I take this exposition of the law from the decisions as a plain, direct, and inclusive exposition of the law as it has been heretofore understood. For the purposes of this occasion I charge you that it is the law still in force to-day, and the law which this Court must instruct you should be your rule of conduct. In doing this I am not at all unmindful of the recent statutes in relation to the licensing and maintenance of race tracks in this state and the seeming permission by the statute of the exercise undervery light and insufficient penaltics of unifmited gambling in all its devious forms thereon.

"I am not unmindful that it may happen that he interpretation which the may be placed upon those recent enactments may possibly be different from the construction which the format years of the construction which is sentiment of the people, as demoralizing, barba validity determined and established. Now the Court expresses its confidence that the Grand Jury will not shrink from the performance of its duty in this matter."

Justice Lippincott urged the Grand Jury to give attention to the violation of law by green goods men, and also to the conduct of affairs and the expenditure of money by public officials.

SCARED THE LITTLE NURSE.

Fourteen-year-old Lucy Hopkins's Expert A burglar entered James McManus's flat. over his saloon at Cedar and Washington streets, on Sunday evening, and, intimidating Lucy Hopkins, the fourteen-year-old nurse of his sleeping four-year-old grand child, Lucy Shea, with a revolver, broke open a bureau drawer and stole a chamois bag containing $36. He put the little nurse where she could see the clock, and said he would come back and kill her if she stirred within ten minutes of his departure. The frightened girl would or his deplactor. Mrs. Evans Has Got Allmony of Her Own That part of the decree of separation obtained by Eliza J. Evans last June against ThomasiH. Evans which gave her alimony of $8 a week was stricken out by Judge Giege rich of the Court of Common Pleas yesterday. Evans declared that William Augustus Al-phonse, his wife's father, had died last Octo-ber, leaving her $60,000. Evans says he is getting a small salary as a bookkeeper, and has to support his father. Mrs. Evans had Rodney R. Jordan, a married man, with three children, arrested on Fob. 25 last for defrauding her of $1800. He said she was realous, and referred to her as "Aunty."

Cut Loose a Pile Briver.

James McGovern and William McLean of 479 Washington street, the first 16 years of age and the second 14, found an old table knife on a dock near the foot of Canai street knife on a dock near the foot of Canai street on Monday afternoot, and proceeded to cut loose a pile driver that was moored at the dock with it. Molean was colared by a policeman just as they had succeeded in their purpose, and McGovern postponed arrest only a short time by jumping overboard. The pile driver was secured before it had drifted any distance, and the boys spent the night in the Leonard street station. They were discharged with a reprimand in the Tombs Police Court yesterday.

Wood. a very wealthy and eccentric resident of Noro-ton Heights, who lives alone on his large estate in a lonely section of the little town, is dring of a paralytic stroke which he received several days ago. Weed's house was palatial and fur-nished richly. Of late, however, the owner became miserly and refused to recognize his neighbors or friends. He parred all the doors and lived in the kitchen, and threatened to shoot any one who dared to interfere with him or trespass on his lands. Weed had not been seen for several days. On Friday last the been seen for several days. On Friday last the neighbors suggested that some one should visit the house and see what had become of him. It was some time before any one plucked up the necessary courage.

Finally a party was organized, and, headed by Medical Examiner William F. French and William Hindley, they went to the house. Mr. Hindley looked through one of the windows. He saw Weed lying on the floor near a sota. When he heard his name called he started to crawl to the door, but fell over and was ynables to rise.

crawl to the door, but led over to rise.

The door was burst open and the party went in. Dr. French made a hasty examination and announced that Weed had a severe paraytic shock. Capable persons were secured to look after Weed, but his recovery is doubtful, as his mind is affected. Although Weed is considered the wealthlest man in town he was dressed in rags.

LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Many Thousands of Them Flock to Salt Lake City to See the Temple Bediented.

BALT LAKE CITY. April 4.-The conference of the Church of Latter Day Saints preliminary to the dedication of the Sait Lake Temple began this morning at the Tabernacle. Th vices opened with the hymn "Come Let Us Anew Our Journey Pursue." President Wilford Woodruff, first Presidential counsellor, and he thanked God for the privilege of standing before the vast concourse and of thanking 10,000 Latter Day Saints for their prayers to the end that the prophecies and hones of the day might be fulfilled. George Q. Cannon followed in a speech recounting the history of the Church through its many viciasitudes.

The city is crowded with visiting saints. Fully 30,000 will attend the dedicatory ceremonies at the temple on Thursday. From Canada to Mexico, from Europe to the Islands of the Pacific saints have journeyed to this Convention. The great Mormon temple, forty years in building, is a marvel of architecture, and the consummation of the finest hope of the Mormon Church is the shrine toward which the eyes of the Latter Day Saints from every land are turned to-day. Thousands of tourists are coming to the city, and the indications are that $0,000 visitors will witness the coremonies at the temple.
